

July 14, 2019

Do not judge, and you will not be judged.

Imagine if we took these words to heart,
Unselved ourselves and took another's part,
Silenced the accuser, dropped the grudge ...

Do not condemn, you will not be condemned.

Imagine if we lived our lives from this
And met each other's outcasts face to face,
Imagine if the blood-dimmed tide was stemmed.

Forgive and you yourselves will be forgiven.

What if we walked together on this path,
What if the whole world laid aside its wrath,
And things were done on earth as though in heaven,
As though the heart's dark knots were all undone,
As though this dreamer weren't the only one?

—Imagine, by Malcolm Guite

Music from this week:

Your Love Awakens Me [Wickham]; Be Still My Soul (In You I Rest) [Jobe]; God I Look To You
[Battistelli]; Who You Say I Am [Hillsong]

To register for an event, read The Weekly, or give online visit mvcturlock.com

Follow Me: Jesus Welcomes All

Gary Sederquist

Luke 18:35-19:10

God plants seeds of faith in _____,

(v 18:35-42)

When seen, _____ brings praise to

God and points people to Christ. (v 18:43-19:4)

No matter where we are, Christ _____

who come to him (v 19:5-7)

Christ's presence brings _____ (v. 19:8-10)

Further Reflection:

God delights in planting seeds of faith in places we may not expect. Consider how your expectations limit how you see His work. Ask God to reveal faith in Him through people and places you may not have seen previously. Be encouraged that He is able to work in ways that are beyond "all we ask or imagine" (Eph. 3:20).